Recalling also the United Nations Conference on Sustainable Development of 2012 and its outcome document entitled "The future we want",[4]

Recalling further the high-level plenary meeting of the General Assembly on the Millennium Development Goals and its outcome document,[5]

Reaffirming the Universal Declaration of Human Rights,[6] and recalling the International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights,[7] the International Covenant on Economic, Social and Cultural Rights,[7] the International Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Racial Discrimination,[8] the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women[9] and the Convention on the Rights of the Child,[10]

Recalling the International Convention on the Protection of the Rights of All Migrant Workers and Members of Their Families,[11] and reiterating the call to Member States that have not yet done so to consider signing and ratifying or acceding to the Convention as a matter of priority and the request to the Secretary-General to continue his efforts to promote and raise awareness of the Convention,

Recalling also the importance of the decent work agenda of the International Labour Organization, including for migrant workers, the eight fundamental Conventions of that Organization and the Global Jobs Pact adopted by the International Labour Conference at its ninety-eighth session, as a general framework within which each country can formulate policy packages specific to its situation and national priorities in order to promote a job-intensive recovery and sustainable development,

Recalling further Commission on Population and Development resolution 2006/2 of 10 May 2006,[12]

Bearing in mind the summary by the President of the General Assembly of the 2006 high-level dialogue on international migration and development,[13]

Acknowledging that the 2006 high-level dialogue provided a useful opportunity to address constructively the issue of international migration and development and heightened awareness of the issue,

Reaffirming the resolve to take measures to ensure respect for and protection of the human rights of migrants, migrant workers and members of their families,

Bearing in mind the obligations of States under international law, as applicable, to exercise due diligence to prevent crimes against migrants, including those perpetrated with racist or xenophobic motivations, to investigate such crimes and to punish the perpetrators and that not doing so violates, and impairs or nullifies

the enjoyment of, the human rights and fundamental freedoms of victims, and urging States to reinforce measures in this regard,

Acknowledging the important and complex interrelationship between international migration and development and the need to deal with the challenges and opportunities that migration presents to countries of origin, transit and destination, recognizing that migration brings benefits and challenges to the global community, and confirming the importance of including the matter in relevant debates and discussions held at the international level, including at the United Nations, in relation to development,

Recalling that migrant workers are among the most vulnerable in the context of the financial and economic crisis and that remittances, which are significant private financial sources for households, have been negatively affected by rising unemployment and weak earnings growth among migrant workers in some countries of destination,

Noting with concern that in many countries of destination international migrants are experiencing higher unemployment than non-migrants,

Recognizing the contributions of young migrants to countries of origin and destination, and in that regard encouraging States to consider the specific circumstances and needs of young migrants,

Noting with concern that the adverse impact, particularly on development, of the ongoing world financial and economic crisis has increased the risk of misperceiving the economic effects of migration as negative, and noting in this regard that national public planning should take account of the positive effects that migration has in the medium to long term,

Recognizing that remittance flows constitute sources of private capital, complement domestic savings and are instrumental in improving the well-being of recipients,

1. Takes note of the report of the Secretary-General;[14]

2. Encourages efforts by Member States and the international community to continue to promote a balanced, coherent and comprehensive approach to international migration and development, in particular by building partnerships and ensuring coordinated action to develop capacities, including for the management of migration;

3. Recognizes the importance of renewing the political will to act cooperatively and constructively in addressing international migration, including regular and irregular migration, to address the challenges and opportunities of international migration in a balanced, coherent and comprehensive manner and to promote respect for and protection of human rights in the development and implementation of policies regarding migration and development;

4. Emphasizes that respect for the human rights and fundamental freedoms of all migrants is essential for reaping the benefits of international migration;

5. Expresses concern about legislation adopted by some States that results in measures and practices that may restrict the human rights and fundamental freedoms of migrants, and reaffirms that, when exercising their sovereign right to enact and implement migratory and border security measures, States have the duty to comply with their obligations under international law, including international human rights law, in order to ensure full respect for the human rights of migrants, as the rights of migrants must be respected at all times without any kind of discrimination;

6. Requests all Member States, in accordance with their relevant international obligations and commitments, to promote cooperation at all levels in addressing the challenge of undocumented or irregular migration so as to foster a secure, regular and orderly process of migration;

7. Welcomes the programmes that allow migrants to integrate fully into society, facilitate family reunification in accordance with the laws and specific criteria of each Member State and promote a harmonious, tolerant and respectful environment, and encourages host countries to take appropriate measures aimed at the full integration of long-term migrants staying legally in the country;

8. Recognizes the need for Member States to continue considering the multidimensional aspects of international migration and development in order to identify appropriate ways and means of maximizing the development benefits and minimizing the negative impacts, including by exploring ways to lower the transfer costs of remittances, garnering the active engagement of expatriates and fostering their involvement in promoting investment in countries of origin and entrepreneurship among non-migrants;

9. Reiterates the need to consider how the migration of highly skilled persons and those with advanced education affects the development efforts of developing countries in order to address the negative impacts and optimize the potential benefits of such migration;

10. Calls upon all relevant bodies, agencies, funds and programmes of the United Nations system and other relevant intergovernmental, regional and subregional organizations, including the Global Migration Group, within their respective mandates, to continue to address the issue of international migration and development, with a view to integrating migration issues, including gender and youth perspectives and cultural diversity, in a more coherent way, in the context of the implementation of the internationally agreed development goals, including the Millennium Development Goals, and with respect for human rights, as well as in the context of the elaboration of the United Nations development agenda beyond 2015;

11. Encourages the United Nations system and other relevant international organizations to support developing countries in their efforts to address migration issues within their respective development strategies in the context of the implementation of the internationally agreed development goals, including the Millennium Development Goals;

12. Decides to convene, every three years, a high-level dialogue on migration and development starting in 2013;

13. Also decides to hold a two-day high-level dialogue on migration and development on 3 and 4 October 2013, after the general debate of the sixty-eighth session of the General Assembly, at United Nations Headquarters;

14. Further decides that the organizational arrangements for the high-level dialogue shall be as follows:

(a) The overall theme of the high-level dialogue on migration and development will be "Identifying concrete measures that enhance the benefits of international migration, while reducing its costs, for countries of origin, transit and destination and migrants alike";

(b) The high-level dialogue will consist of four plenary meetings and three interactive multi-stakeholder round tables:

(i) Round table 1 will be held in the afternoon of the first day of the high-level dialogue;

(ii) Round tables 2 and 3 will be held in the morning and afternoon of the second day of the high-level dialogue;

(iii) Summaries of the deliberations of the three round-table sessions will be presented orally by the chairs of the round-table sessions during the concluding plenary meeting of the high-level dialogue with a particular focus on outcomes and follow-up by the United Nations system and Member States;

(c) The themes for each of the three round tables will be as follows:

(i) Round table 1 will focus on the effects of international migration on economic and social development, taking into account the United Nations development agenda beyond 2015;

(ii) Round table 2 will focus on measures to ensure respect for and protection of the human rights of all migrants and to prevent and combat smuggling of migrants and trafficking in persons, with particular reference to their effects on women and children;

(iii) Round table 3 will focus on institutional coherence in addressing international migration;

(d) The three round tables will be co-chaired by one representative from the North and one from the South, to be appointed by the President of the General Assembly, with due regard for geographical balance, in consultation with regional groups;

15. Decides that the participation in the high-level dialogue and its preparatory process will be in accordance with the rules of procedure of the General Assembly;

16. Invites Member States and observers to participate in the high-level dialogue at the highest possible level;

17. Invites the Holy See, in its capacity as observer State, Palestine, in its capacity as observer, and the European Union, in its capacity as observer, to participate in the high-level dialogue and its preparatory process;

18. Invites relevant United Nations agencies, funds and programmes, as well as the International Organization for Migration, to participate to the preparation of the high-level dialogue;

19. Invites the President of the General Assembly to draw up a list of representatives of relevant non-governmental organizations in consultative status with the Economic and Social Council who may participate in the high-level dialogue and to submit the proposed list to Member States for their consideration on a non-objection basis in accordance with past practice;

20. Also invites the President of the General Assembly to draw up a list of representatives of other relevant intergovernmental organizations and entities who may participate in the high-level dialogue, taking into account the principle of equitable geographical representation, and to submit the proposed list to Member States for their consideration on a non-objection basis in accordance with past practice;

21. Decides that the high-level dialogue shall result in an intergovernmentally negotiated outcome document, and requests the President of the General Assembly to convene informal consultations at an appropriate date in order to enable sufficient consideration and agreement by Member States prior to the high-level dialogue;

22. Requests the Secretary-General to prepare a comprehensive overview of studies and analyses on the multidimensional aspects of migration and development, including the effects of migration on economic and social development in developed and developing countries;

23. Invites the regional commissions and their subregional offices, in collaboration with other relevant entities of the United Nations system as well as the International Organization for Migration, to organize discussions to examine regional aspects of international migration and development and to provide inputs, in accordance with their respective mandates, to the preparatory process of the high-level dialogue;

24. Invites Member States, through appropriate regional consultative processes and, as appropriate, other major initiatives in the field of international migration, including on international migration and development, to contribute to the high-level dialogue;

25. Decides to include in the provisional agenda of its sixty-ninth session, under the item entitled "Globalization and interdependence", the sub-item entitled "International migration and development";

26. Requests the Secretary-General to submit to the General Assembly at its sixty-ninth session a report on the implementation of the present resolution.
